

Checklist of questions for creating OER

Before, during and after the actual creation of OER, it is helpful to answer several questions:

Before

- Do I have a defined target group that I want to create the OER for? (Chapter III – OER Creation – 1. Should I create a Wikipedia page or select an Open Educational Resource based on Mediawiki software instead?)
- For who is the given resource being created? (Chapter III. OER Creation – 3. Content)
- Who are the users supposed to be? (Chapter III. OER Creation - 3. Content)
- Who is the target group? (Chapter III. OER Creation - 3. Content - 3.1. Target group)
- Do I have a functional community at my disposal? (Chapter III. OER Creation - 3. Content - 3.4. Community)

During

- Is the text complex enough? (Chapter III. OER Creation - 4. Quality)
- Has the text been properly created stylistically, grammatically and visually? (Chapter III. OER Creation - 4. Quality)
- Are the used sources credible? (Chapter III. OER Creation - 4. Quality)
- Are all sources properly cited? (Chapter III. OER Creation - 4. Quality - 4.3. Recognizing quality)
- Are my licenses tagged? (Chapter III. OER Creation - 4. Quality - 4. Processes of ensuring quality – license tagging)
- Will my article pass the peer-review process? (Chapter III. OER Creation - 4. Quality - 4. Processes of ensuring quality - review)
- Is the project still active, i.e. is it online and is someone still taking care of it, or is it simply online without maintenance? (Chapter III. OER Creation - 4. Quality - 4. Processes of ensuring quality - sustainability) Are the individual texts balanced in a qualitative way? (Chapter III. OER Creation - 4. Quality - 4. Processes of ensuring quality - balance)

After

- Are all links still functional? (Chapter III. OER Creation - 4. Quality - 4.5. Topicality of information)
- Task – practice creative commons licenses.
- The following Creative Commons licenses are tagged under the article. Mark everything that the user can do with this article according to the tagged licenses. List origin, Adhere to the license, Do not elaborate upon, Do not use commercially
